Tokyo Gas Co., Ltd.

3Q FY2016 Earnings Presentation
Main Q&As

Q1: Why has the full-year outlook of the electric power segment been revised upward from the previous forecast?

A1: It is due to an increase in income arising from a decline in operating expenses.

Q2: Why have repair costs up to the third quarter increased year-on-year?

A2: It is partly because of the recognition of provision for costs related to the replacement of gas valves with air vent ports.

Q3: What is the breakdown of extraordinary income/loss (full-year) of ¥9.0 billion?

A3: An extraordinary income of ¥2.9 billion due to sale of securities has been recorded until the third quarter, and we are considering sale of asset holdings in the 4Q.
